CSS

- A margin indicates how much space we want around the outside of an element.
- A padding indicates how much space we want around the content inside an element.
- padding adds space within elements
- h1 style="color:red;">Prework Study Guide inline CSS using style attribute to change the colour of a single heading
- & #160 indent
- link rel="stylesheet" href="./assets/style.css" /> HTML element linking to an external CSS style sheet
- margin makes a margin around the elements
- margin: 0 indicates no margin
- * selector, indicated all the elements visible on the page will adhere to these style rules
- text-align: center centre the text
- width: 100%; width e.g 100%
- height: 120px; height e.g 120px
- background-color: blue; background colour e.g blue
- color: white; text colour e.g white
- block value that assigns each image to start on a new line
- padding-left: 40px;adds padding to the left e.g 40px
- font-size: 20px; font size e.g 20px
- link rel="stylesheet" href="./assets/style.css" link, relationship, href (location of the resource) to style.css in the assets folder
- .card card class selector
- border: 5px solid gray border with thickness 5px and grey
- box-shadow: 5px 10px #888888 adds a shadow around the frame
-